GERUNDS & INFINITIVES

A. Form

Gerunds

A gerund is the -ing form of a verb.

- I like swimming.
- I don't like paying taxes.

Infinitives

An infinitive is to + the base form of a verb.

- I like to swim.
- I don't like to pay taxes.

B. Function

Gerunds and infinitives combine the action meaning of a verb with the grammatical function of a noun. They act as nouns (subjects and objects) in a sentence.

- Speaking in front of a crowd can be scary. (subject position)
- Do you want to come with us? (object position)

Learn to swim by swimming.

—English proverb

C. Gerund or Infinitive?

Some sentence positions take only a gerund or only an infinitive, but there is one position (following a verb) where the decision depends on the main verb.

Gerunds
Position	Pattern	Notes	Examples
subject of a sentence	S = Ger	Gerunds are common in the subject position. While an infinitive is also possible, it is very formal and not common.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Shopping is my favorite hobby.</li> <li>• Working out has really improved my health.</li> </ul> following a preposition	Prep + Ger	Gerunds are also common after a preposition. This rule applies to all prepositions, including ones that are part of phrasal verbs.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• She thought about calling him but decided she wouldn't.</li> <li>• They are planning on going to the party tonight.</li> </ul> object of a verb	V + Ger	This is the one position where both gerunds and infinitives are commonly used. The choice of which to use depends on the main verb. Some common verbs that are followed by a gerund are advise, avoid, enjoy, finish, practice, quit, and suggest . See the list on page 6 for more of these verbs.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• He enjoys learning about gerunds.</li> <li>• My teacher suggested studying for the upcoming quiz.</li> </ul>

Note #1:

A verb can be in any tense. Progressive tenses use the -ing form, so it is possible to see two -ing forms side by side (progressive verb + gerund).

- We are all quitting smoking next Friday.
- Michelle was practicing juggling five oranges when I saw her.

Note #2:

Go is often used to describe an activity in English. No matter the tense used, go is followed by a gerund.

- She went golfing last weekend.
- Do you want to go skiing today?
- We are going sailing next weekend.

Infinitives
Position	Pattern	Notes	Examples
following an adjective	Adj + Inf	Infinitives are common after an adjective. Though it is sometimes possible to use a gerund in this position, it is more common to use an infinitive.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>It is nice to meet you.</li> <li>She mentioned that it was dangerous to stand near that machine.</li> </ul>
following a noun or pronoun	N + Inf*	If the verb has an object that is a noun or pronoun, it is almost always followed by an infinitive.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>You asked me to call you.</li> <li>The doctor advised Mark to eat more vegetables.</li> </ul>
object of a verb	V + Inf	This is the one position where both gerunds and infinitives are commonly used. It all depends on the main verb. Some common ones are ask, choose, decide, get, need, plan, promise, and want . See the list on page 6 for more of these verbs.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>They want to get their tests back as soon as possible.</li> <li>The students are planning to have a party this Friday.</li> </ul>

*Note #3:

The N + Inf rule is very handy. For example, the verb "advise" normally takes a gerund, as in "The doctor advised eating more vegetables." But when there is a noun object, as in "The doctor advised Mark to eat more vegetables," the infinitive must be used. The noun rule is more important than the verb rule!

Note #4:

Because both gerunds and infinitives keep their verb meanings (even though they function as nouns), they too can have objects. It's common to see a sentence with two or more objects when gerunds or infinitives are used. For example:

- I enjoy studying English.
"Studying" is the direct object of "enjoy,"
and "English" is the direct object of "studying."
- My boss asked me to help her.
"Me" is the direct object of "asked," "to help" is also the direct object of "asked," and "her" is the direct object of "to help."

Note #5:

Some verbs take either a gerund or an infinitive with no change in meaning. Some common verbs are like, love, and hate. See the list on page 6 for more of these verbs.

- I love eating pasta.
- I love to eat pasta.

Note #6:

Can gerunds and infinitives be negative? Yes! There are four ways to form negative sentences with gerunds and/or infinitives.

1. not + main verb + gerund or infinitive
  - He didn't want to do his homework.
  - She doesn't like studying after school.
2. main verb + not + infinitive
  - They decided not to go to the game.
  - We agreed not to sue the company.
3. main verb + to + not + base form (less common)
  - They decided to not go to the game.
  - We agreed to not sue the company.
4. main verb + not + gerund (not common)
  - She advised not going out in the storm.
  - He considered not applying for the job.

Verb Cards

There are many ways to use these cards. One idea is to put students into small groups, cut up the verb cards from all three lists, and give each group one shuffled set of cards. Students can take turns choosing a card and saying if it should be followed by a gerund, an infinitive, or both. If the student gets it right, he/she may keep the card; otherwise, he/she must return it to the pile. The winner is the student with the most cards at the end.

SPELLING NOTES:

This lesson shows the American spelling of the words Favorite, Counselor, Traveling, Theater, Neighbors, and Practice. Most other English-speaking countries spell these words this way: Favourite, Counsellor, Travelling, Theatre, Neighbours, and Practise (when used as a verb; Practice when used as a noun). Make it a challenge for your students to find these words in the lesson and see if they know the alternate spellings.

EDITOR'S NOTES:

1. See Gerunds & Infinitives: Grammar Rules and Gerunds & Infinitives: Verb Lists in our Grammar & Usage Resource section for a summary of the main uses and verb lists:
<https://esllibrary.com/resources/2261>
<https://esllibrary.com/resources/2259>
2. The verbs try, stop, forget, remember, and regret can be followed by a gerund or an infinitive, but the meaning of the verb changes. To introduce these challenging verbs to higher-level students, see Gerunds & Infinitives: Meaning Changes in our Grammar & Usage Resource section:
<https://esllibrary.com/resources/2260>
3. This answer key reflects the rules taught on pages 3–5. Feel free to point out to students when another choice sounds natural enough. (E.g., Exercise 8, #6, [b] is the best choice, but [a] is also possible.)
